Janet: Yeah. How do you know that? I haven't even told you what we're going to order.

Sara: Well, I've had my share of experiences like that. They all work that way, don't they?

It's a special kind of hard toast, looking and tasting a little more like cookies, but much better. Meg, who has eaten them twice, told me they're delicious enough to make you want to cry.

Sara: Really? I did cry several times, just not for the same reason. You know, after such a long wait, I was dreaming that the snacks I ordered would be the most freshly-made and like what was shown in the pictures. However, when I opened the pack, there was a strange smell and the fillings were all dried out. After some more worse experiences, I totally gave up. Now, I only trust things I can really see with my own eyes.

Have you ever heard of “sexting?” No? Then, you're out of date. Sexting means sending sexual pictures by cellphones. Teachers, parents, and doctors are worried about “sexting.” A girl uses her cellphone to send pictures of herself to her boyfriend to show her love for him. In the picture, she may have few clothes on, or she may be wearing no clothes at all. That is to say, she may be NUDE in the picture. If the boy shares the picture by either posting it on the Net or re-sending it to his friends, this girl is sure to be harassed by other boys easily. And when some other girls see the picture, they might call her names; and it might make the girl sad and even try to kill herself. Also, if the girl is under 18, the boy who sends the picture is breaking the law by posting the picture on the Net. So it is a must for teenagers, parents and teachers to understand what sexting is about and what we can do to stop it from happening.
